In this West Loop condo, design star Brianne Bishop created an artful oasis for empty-nester clients.

A NEW CHAPTER

Chicago's design scene is hot as ever, and here's proof positive: For the first time in the history of Interiors Chicago, we have added a fifth issue to our annual calendar, where we get to showcase even more stunning projects and industry buzz. In this Future Issue of Interiors Chicago, we have the privilege of spotlighting on-the-rise visionaries, including artists BOJITT and Anai Singer, whose innovative concepts continue to inspire. Speaking of inspiration, the just-opened Dulcigno Home Studio in Skokie offers plenty of it at the impeccable new showroom—it's absolutely worth a visit.

With each new issue, we're reminded of the remarkable artistic spirit that thrives in our city. One perfect example is designer Brianne Bishop's jaw-dropping recent project featured in "Stylishly in Sync." Her daring combinations and textures left us awestruck and reaffirmed why our curiosities will never be sated in this invigorating industry. Although tastes may evolve, it's evident that the passion of our local artists is here to stay. We could not be more honored to provide a platform where their gifts shine. This month marks a milestone, but we're only just getting started. The future looks bright, and we are thrilled you're along for the journey.

HOME FOR THE HOLIDAYS

Getting the blues is a very good thing when it comes to this showstopping project from Soucie Horner Interiors, one of three stellar studios whose work is showcased in this issue.

As we welcome the winter season, it's a time to get cozy in our homes, whether we're spending quiet holidays with just a few loved ones or opening our doors wide to celebrate with friends from near and far. All that domestic time might have you looking around at your surroundings and feeling inspired to plan a refresh for 2024—and that's why the timing for this issue of Interiors Chicago couldn't be more perfect. Inside these pages, you'll find story after story that I hope gives you chic visuals and fabulous ideas to implement in your own abode, including trend pieces on jute rugs and toile wallpapers; a sneak peek at Sherwin-Williams color of the year for 2024; an in-depth look at Ralph Lauren's homes through the lens of his latest book; and a roundup of some of the top Chicago artists working today, whose works you might just need to have hanging on your walls someday.

Of course, no issue of Interiors Chicago would be complete without our jaw-dropping home features, and we're shining the spotlight on three very different (but equally extraordinary) projects from Jeannine Dal Pra's moody stunner to Soucie Horner Interiors' showstopping full-floor No. 9 Walton home and Brianne Bishop Design's sophisticated West Loop gem. Round it all out with an in-depth look at the design of the new St. Regis Chicago's exquisite public spaces, and it's an issue that we're proud to cap off a truly exciting year with. Here's to more incredible design in 2024—we'll see you then.

PAST PERFECT There is no better time than a big birthday to try out a new look. Long-standing fans of Lee Jofa (kravet.com/lee-jofa) will be delighted to discover new colorways of the brand's iconic Hollyhock and Tree of Life patterns, which will now also be available as printed wallcoverings for the first time. In keeping with Jofa's devotion to classic styling, the Lee Jofa 200th anniversary furniture introduction echoes the hallowed halls of traditionalism. With designs ranging from an English antique-inspired lyre chair to a fully upholstered English arm sofa, the collection pairs well with Jofa's long-standing love of print and color. A mix of materials includes a fresh offering of wrapped cocktail and side tables, hammered and smooth metal tables, and graceful upholstery styles that fit both past and present. The new introductions of wrapped cocktail and side tables are offered in four new paints on raffia and four new basket weave colors. Lee Jofa Carpets introduces a sophisticated collection of 69 area rugs, all inspired by the brand's iconic wovens, velvets and textures. Each rug is made uniquely for a project, beginning at 10 to 24 weeks, depending on complexity, quality and size. Created with an authentic artistic flair, this carpet collection gives an age-old construction a gorgeous new updated image, aligning perfectly for celebrating this brand's two centuries—aging gracefully, indeed. —Phebe Wahl

The presidential suite pairs neutral tones with organic shapes plus metallic and stone details to create a sense of contemporary urban sophistication.

HIGH STYLE

The new St. Regis Chicago cements its status as one of the Windy City's chicest hotels thanks to showstopping interiors by KTG Y Simeone Deary Design Group.

By Lauren Brocato // Photographed by Mike Schwartz

From top: In the double-height lobby, a floating chandelier crafted with linear metal rods and glass orbs stars; an Armadillo area rug and Sonneman pendant add warmth to the dining area in the presidential suite.

« The St. Regis brand demands all the comfort and sophistication the exterior architecture implies. »

-SARA TALLEUX »

With its glossy, coral curves soaring 101 stories high, Jeanne Gang's latest effort, the St. Regis Chicago, (stregischicago.com) has leveled up the city's already-iconic skyline. When it came to creating interior spaces that would match the exterior's wow factor, one Chicago firm stood above the rest: KTG Y Simeone Deary Design Group, the masterminds behind luxury projects like Chicago's Michelin-starred Boka, a pair of ultraluxe cocktail bars at The Palazzo at The Venetian Resort in Las Vegas, and more. "Marriott's luxury St. Regis brand demands all the comfort and sophistication the exterior architecture implies," says KTG Y associate principal Sara Talleux, who spearheaded the project along with senior interior design managers Susan Jacobs and Justin Brown. Noting the spaces' elegant, neutral aesthetic accented by glamorous design moments throughout, Talleux adds, “The interior design conjures monumentality and history, as well as modern art and jazz, all grounded in the city’s singular story.” Focusing on the property’s public-facing spaces, presidential suite and spa, KTGy worked with materials and color palettes that juxtapose light and dark, and hard and soft to evoke a balanced sense of drama and elegance. “The hotel’s double-height lobby immediately impresses with smoky marble floors and walls.

From top: A custom vanity greets guests in the presidential suite’s luxe bathroom; a custom bench outfitted by American Upholstery Design offers the perfect perch for taking in the suite’s jaw-dropping views through floor-to-ceiling windows.

Clockwise from top right: Curved seating and Kelly Wearstler's sculptural Avant large curved sconces from Visual Comfort in the spa nod to the building's exterior form; Tech Lighting pendants hang over the spa's Celebration Bar, which is accented by Onyx countertops from Bourbon Tile & Marble and MDC Interior Solutions wallcovering; the property's public spaces balance light and dark with elegant, dramatic touches; the serene pool offers views of Navy Pier and the lake.

«The interior design conjures monumentality and history, as well as modern art and jazz, all grounded in the city's singular story.» —SARA TALLEUX »

Above the high-gloss marble front desk, a floating chandelier, made of linear metal rods and glass orbs, invokes light peeking through the dust," Talleux says.

In the serene Iridium Spa, artworks sourced from NINE dots ARTS, an inviting lounge sofa from Ghidini 1961 and delicate lighting fixtures from RH, Visual Comfort and other top-notch vendors create an inviting essence reflective of the St. Regis' DNA. Adds Talleux, "Decked in pink pastel tones, rounded forms and fabric layers that mirror the lake shore, the sumptuous spa speaks to comfort and refinement as it reflects nature."

Retreat to the lofty presidential suite, and you'll find KTG's signature from wall to wall. "The glamorous suite carries the characteristic juxtaposition in its rough carved forms and sumptuous materials," says Talleux. "Bespoke abstract sculptures cohabit with industrial materials as neutral tones and organic shapes contrast with metallic details—all residing in impeccable luxury among 3,200 square feet of private space." ■

5 ON THE RISE

Originating from various corners of the globe and paving different paths along the way, these five Chicago visual artists are all making an impact on the art scene across the city and beyond.

By Lauren Brocato and Melanie King

ANAI SINGER @ANAI.SINGER_ART

THE STORY "I've always been an artist; I'm creating something new all the time. Graduating from the prestigious Academy of Fine Arts in Poland was a dream come true. Now, being a mom, artist, fashion designer and photographer gives me complete fulfillment."

THE STYLE "My style is diverse. I express myself through monochrome as well as color, texture and form. When I work with black and white, I take a break and escape into the world of color, where I constantly discover something new."

DREAM PROJECT "When I placed an order for 12 paintings from a [certain] famous person."

WHAT'S NEXT "Finalization of a large project I've been working on for a long time, which will take place in 2024. After that, more challenges that I can't wait for."

Anai Singer's work has been shown across the globe, from Italy to the U.K. and beyond.

"FEROX" is part of BOJITT's All the Hats we Wear series.

BOJITT @BOJANAILIC_BOJITT

THE STORY "I was born and raised in Serbia (formerly Yugoslavia), where I achieved a successful career as a fashion designer. My mission is to empower and inspire others to dig deeper into who they really are. My art is a product of this exchange."

THE STYLE "Since moving from Serbia to Chicago, my practice has focused on painting canvases, murals and commissions united by gesture and purpose. My abstractions tell stories through mixed media like acrylic and spray paint, and bold colors focused on climax and culmination."

DREAM PROJECT "Between these lines lies my dream project. At the end of the day, it is not about us alone—it's about how many lives we teach with our work and who we are."

WHAT'S NEXT "In April, I have a one-month artist residency in France's Chateau d'Orquevaux. I've received an invitation and the Denis Diderot grant, and I'm looking forward to it—quiet time to focus on something completely new."

THE STORY “As a young girl in Poland, my passion for art began when I painted on the outside walls of our family’s apartment building. Today, I incorporate my photography and charcoal work to create abstract figurative art on canvas.”

THE STYLE “My work exudes edge, mystery and sophistication. Its timeless elegance of dramatic charcoal strokes, textured or blended layers of acrylic paint and methodical abstract composition merge together like the beautiful complexities of the female soul.”

DREAM PROJECT “In the near future, I have imagined a collaboration with a fashion house and interior design firm. It would also be exciting to show at a premier world art show and further establish my work in the art world.”

WHAT’S NEXT “Since my last solo exhibition, I took note of how viewers interacted with my work. Their engagement inspired an idea for a future collection of large-scale pieces. I’m also excited to expand my work in greater Los Angeles.”

YVETTE LENZI
@YVETTELENIART

THE STORY “I have always embraced that art has not defined me. I am deeply passionate about my craft and dedicated to my artistic pursuits. My passion led me into a career as an art teacher, and now, an independent studio artist.”

THE STYLE “Authenticity is a key characteristic of my style and a genuine reflection of myself, my spirit and my experiences. My collection captures the calm and the wild of the world that collectors love—timeless, abstract designs with an edgy and organic flair.”

DREAM PROJECT “Expand my reach to the lavish living of the West Coast and to be curated in high-end boutiques, galleries and showrooms where my art has a lasting impact on art lovers.”

WHAT’S NEXT “I am excited to be designing and creating custom mural designs for Starbucks, and I am looking forward to displaying and selling my art in Serena & Lily across the U.S.”

Lenzi began her creative career as an art teacher before becoming an independent studio artist.

MATTHEW NGUYEN
@MATT_K_NGUYEN.ART

THE STORY “I’ve been a creative since I was a kid. But it wasn’t until the pandemic that I started painting. Night after night, I was painting pieces in my imagination while trying to sleep. They felt so real that I had to make them.”

THE STYLE “The process is similar yet different with each piece: always abstract, layered and textural in a way that I believe evokes a sense of nature, which is where I get the most inspiration. It’s the context from which we all come from.”

DREAM PROJECT “I’d love to make a monumental piece of artwork to be publicly displayed somewhere in the forest or desert. I recently did a shoot in the woods with a large canvas that I made—maybe I was trying to manifest it.”

WHAT’S NEXT “I have commissions lined up through May, so I’ll be fulfilling those projects. After that, I’m not quite sure. My approach with art has always been fluid, so I take it whichever way the wind blows and do what feels right.” ■

Nguyen refers to himself as a “Pandemic Painter.”

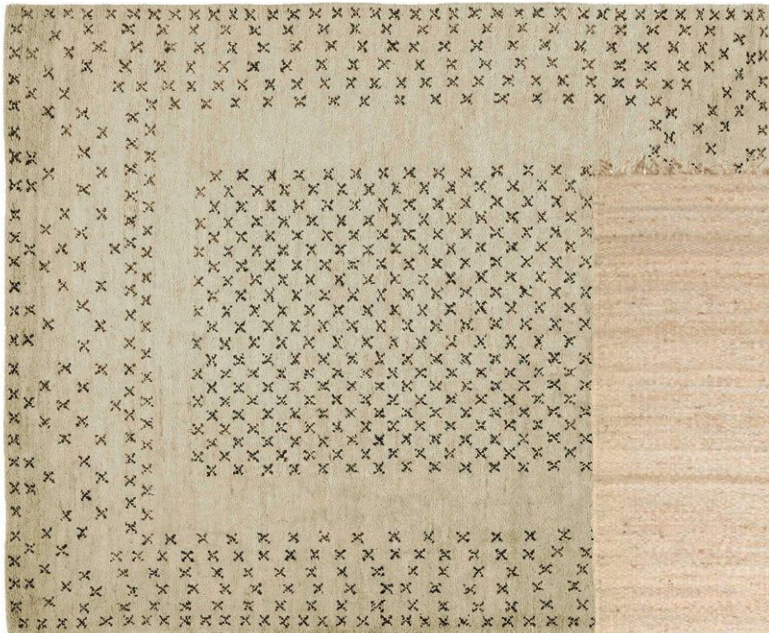

In order to highlight the natural beauty of the materials, skilled weavers have handwoven a mixture of jute and cotton in light, neutral hues to create a design that fits with any aesthetic. THE FINER THINGS

There's no doubt Roberta Kramer, Senior Vice President of the largest auction house founded in the U.S., Heritage Auctions (ha.com), has a keen eye. Before joining HA in 2016, when she opened the company's first regional office in the Midwest, Kramer's 25-year career in the art and antiques industry has included stints at Hindman Auctions, Susanin's Auctions and her own firm, Roberta Kramer & Associates, founded in 2001. Today, she helms the Chicago and New York offices of HA—which recently made headlines after a two-day event ended as the second-highest-grossing Hollywood auction in history thanks to the sale of a Star Wars X-Wing fighter model for $3.1 million. Here, we check in with Kramer as she shares the must-have items that infuse luxury into her life.

Savannah College of Art and Design President and Founder Paula Wallace has created a myriad of one-of-a-kind programs to support alumni artists and designers long after graduation. Here, we asked her to share a sketch of how the university champions its alumni and spotlight some SCAD stars to watch. By Phebe Wahl

Savannah College of Art and Design President
Paula Wallace

HOW DOES SCAD CONTINUE TO SUPPORT STUDIO ARTISTS AND DESIGNERS AFTER GRADUATION?

The special relationship SCAD alumni enjoy with their alma mater is unlike any in higher ed, where SCAD continues to invest resources into the professional success of our graduates long after they walk the commencement stage. For example, I created the SCAD Alumni Atelier for our Bees in every discipline, from studio artists and screenwriters to sneaker design and fashion entrepreneurs.

The Alumni Atelier typically lasts 10 weeks and provides housing, studio space, meals, a stipend and other resources to give our Bees the time and freedom to create a new film, fashion line, jewelry collection, novel, screenplay, you name it. SCAD provides this unbelievable resource at no cost to alumni. In the past year, we've welcomed back 34 superstar grads for residencies at SCAD Lacoste (our permanent study-abroad campus in the south of France), SCAD Savannah and SCAD Atlanta, including portrait and landscape painters, a documentary filmmaker, an actor writing his first TV pilot and an illustrator writing her first children's book. No other university comes close to a residency program of this scope and breadth.

SCAD also purchases alumni work for the SCAD Private View Collection, on display in more than 100 university buildings on two continents—art that brings exuberance and wonder to the SCADbuilt environment in university classrooms, conference rooms, guesthouses, hallways, stairwells, alcoves, even restrooms. Alumni art lives everywhere at SCAD! The Private View Collection includes nearly 17,000 art objects, most created by and purchased from our incredibly gifted SCAD grads. These works of art pull triple duty, elevating the environment with surprise and delight, displaying for guests the myriad visual talents of our grads, and providing current SCAD students inspiration and models for professional studio practice.

At the SCAD Museum of Art, you can also find the SCAD MOA Alumni Gallery, a space reserved exclusively for new shows by SCAD alumni artists, open year-round in the finest teaching museum at any university on the planet. Can you imagine the adrenalized boon for a career to have one of your first solo exhibitions in this gorgeous contemporary art museum, alongside SCAD-curated shows by Kehinde Wiley, Carrie Mae Weems, Marilyn Minter, Bill Viola, Liza Lou?

Then, of course, there's SCAD Art Sales, the only university service of its kind in international higher ed, offering to the public professional commercial gallery curation representing exclusively the work of SCAD artists. Our clients include collectors and companies from Facebook to Netflix. Work purchased from and installed by SCAD Art Sales is found everywhere, from boutique hotels and corporate headquarters in the U.S. and Europe to the Mercedes-Benz Stadium in Atlanta, where SCAD worked with alumni and others to curate, fabricate and install one of the most expansive collections of public art in the world, commissioned to fill 3 million square feet of stadium.

WHAT ELSE DOES SCAD PROVIDE ITS GRADUATES?

The resources SCAD provides go on and on and on! Consider SCAD Career and Alumni Success, where every SCAD Bee has a career coach for life: a dedicated pro they can call when it's time for moves big and small. SCAD CAS advisers walk with our alumni through professional transitions and make key introductions, leveraging our network of nearly 60,000 alumni and the thousands of elite brand recruiters who hire at SCAD every year.

Our alumni, already deep into their entrepreneurial journeys, can come back to the university for SCADpro Fund, where SCAD invests in and builds up alumni companies. Since I created the SCADpro Fund, we've invested millions into 12 alumni brands, products and services, including video games, apps, sneakers, clothing and more.

SCAD invites our more 'intrapreneurial' alumni—i.e., Bees applying their leadership and creative talents at an established brand—to bring their teams to SCADpro, our in-house business innovation lab that creates real products and services for Fortune 100 clients. Some of our biggest SCADpro assignments are the result of alumni who pitch the idea to their employers and who then help lead the assignment. One is Amanda Johns, hired as a UX designer by Gulfstream after a SCADpro assignment. Amanda's now back at SCADpro as a client, earning serious cred with her Gulfstream team while further advancing the brand.

As SCAD grads rise into leadership roles, they find themselves speaking and presenting more often—one reason I created SCADamp, where communication coaches work with alumni to hone their pitches and build confidence for the next chapter in their careers. Nearly 75% of Gen Z admit they struggle with workplace communication, and every recruiter who comes to SCAD says communication is the most important interpersonal skill they seek in new hires. NBC News recently reported on SCADamp as an innovative resource that advances our students' and graduates' careers.

SCAD hires alumni to return to campus and give talks on their careers, lead demos, review portfolios and more. The university also hires alumni to lead research initiatives for SCAD SERVE, which addresses urgent community needs in our hometowns. This year alone, we've hired 13 SCAD alumni to research, design and create spectacular murals for public parks, playgrounds and schools through our SCAD Paint Our Parks initiative—or, as we call it, SCAD POP. Our most recent SCAD POP triumph is on display at the Sara J. González Memorial Park in Atlanta, where SCAD alumni artist José Ray worked directly with González's granddaughter (SCAD graphic design alum Paulina de la Valette) to create a proud and vibrant visual tribute to the beauty and entrepreneurial spirit of González and the Hispanic and Latino communities of Atlanta.

SCAD remains forever dedicated to our Bees' success, not just before graduation but throughout their creative careers. As we say, 'Once a Bee, Always a Bee.' scad.edu ■

FIVE SCAD ALUMNI ARTISTS AND DESIGNERS TO KNOW

SUMMER WHEAT (MFA, painting, 2005)
"Beekeeper Pink (Left) 1" (2021, acrylic paint and gouache on aluminum mesh), 107 ½ inches by 40 ¼ inches

"What I find most compelling in Summer Wheat's oeuvre is her delicious tongue-in-cheek humor—the sense of whimsy, of exploration that creates an openness and approachability often overlooked in contemporary fine art. A master of form and function, Summer continually intrigues and engages with her expressive use of color and groundbreaking, innovative and utterly unique approach to methods and materials, as in this buzzy spectrum of a beekeeper."

YUNAN MA (BFA, fashion marketing and management, 2013) "Zinnia Mania" (2021, fibers), 24 inches by 24 inches by 5 inches

"Mesmerizing in their intricacy, juxtaposing natural and geometric shapes with astonishing bursts of color, Yunan Ma fashions dramatic floral works that burst forth and demand the viewer's attention—almost hypnotically so. Yunan deftly evokes brushstrokes with natural fibers, evincing a mastery over materials that radiates pure joy from every silk petal, woolen sunrise and cotton bloom of her chromatically magical fiber concoctions. She is the fiber whisperer."

KIPPER MILLSAP (BFA, illustration, 2006)
"Unfurling" (2023, paint on panel), 72 inches by 108 inches

"With his encyclopedic knowledge of retro themes and nostalgic ephemera and his embrace of bold colors, textures and clean lines, Kipper Millsap fashions unforgettable murals, sure to raise a smile and occasionally an eyebrow. His lush jungle scene of vivid moths and curling vines is the perfect addition of bold color and fun to our newest multipurpose wonder of a complex at SCAD Atlanta called FORTY-FIVE—practically a five-star resort for our Bees in Midtown Atlanta."

XINIA GUAN (MFA, jewelry, 2020)
"Flowform" (2023, hand-cut silver sculpture)

"Xinia Guan's hand-cut metallic jewelry meditates on the delicate relationship between construction and deconstruction. As a SCAD Alumni Atelier ambassador in spring 2023, Xinia reshaped metals into meticulous sculptural pieces inspired by the geometry of organic structures, diffusing effulgence through each intricate perforation. The SCAD Alumni Atelier encourages and nurtures creative business opportunities being developed by SCAD grads, providing time and space to create new lines and products to advance their careers."

ASHLEY CUNNINGHAM (BFA, photography, 2003), "untitled 1" (2023, digital print), 36 inches by 36 inches

"I love Ashley Cunningham's sense of humor—playful, political and, in this instance, very, very pink. You see a brilliant mind at work, expressing subtle commentary on contemporary society, media and entertainment. Her images—part photography, part digital collage—present conventional motifs and figures in unconventional ways, employing saturated hues and the uncanny to great effect. Visitors to FORTY FIVE can view this particular work in the women's room at the SCADshow theater. Art lives everywhere at SCAD!"

ONWARD & UPWARD

Sherwin-Williams' 2024 Color of the Year, Upward is the perfect shade for creating airy spaces and quiet minds.

By Caroline Bentley Edwards

Easy, breezy,
beautiful... Upward!
Sherwin-Williams

released its annual Color of the Year 2024, and the color is providing respite for all our spaces. After plentiful research and design methodology, the Sherwin-Williams team pulls one throughline of color through their Color Forecast palettes, and this year, it's the calming, light blue dubbed Upward (SW 6239). "Easy, breezy, light and carefree," says director of color marketing Sue Wadden. "[Upward] is all about a calming expression of color. We are in a frantic time. We really wanted an opportunity for a color that is not a neutral but still very calming and simplistic. Upward pairs great with other colors, and it was really important to me to pick a color that counterbalances the weight of the world." Upward is just that.

In Sherwin-Williams' biennial trend report, Colormix Forecast 2024, Anthology: Volume One, the company explains that Upward offers a gentle push in the right direction, uplifting our moods and spaces but careful not to overwhelm them. "We've been tracking the importance of green over several seasons, and what has emerged is that blue is going to overtake green and rise in importance," says Wadden. "Blue will represent what we will see in the next seasons. I wanted Upward to indicate what is to come because that is what Color of the Year should be."

Not only is the color a breath of fresh air, but its applications are versatile, perfect for respite spaces like bathrooms, bedrooms and closets and more unexpected spaces like the kitchen. Says Wadden, "Blue's not always a color for kitchens. It is a weird food color, so it doesn't always translate to kitchens, but Upward is very airy and bright and translates a versatile feel. It can be beachy. It can feel modern." The perfect complement to a coastal chic kitchen, a grand millennial living room, or even a midcentury modern sitting room. Upward can revive an old vanity piece, complement the ceiling of your front porch, ward off evil spirits (according to the Gullah Geechee people), and even uplift your everyday mood. Fall in love with this color's overall calming effect and allow it to inspire your next home project.

THE CLIENT

From 1986 to 2020, Jeannine Dal Pra was known as an expert curator of cutting-edge home accessories, furniture, tabletop and jewelry at her must-shop concept store Elements. No surprise then, that when the store closed there was no shortage of clients reaching out to Dal Pra for design advice. Case in point: One regular asked if Dal Pra would visit their new apartment—a 3,200-square-foot gem with 10-foot ceilings and floor-to-ceiling windows with an expansive terrace off the living room and dining room areas—to provide input on the renovation and design. “The living room and dining areas are open to the kitchen,” notes Dal Pra, “a perfect setup for entertaining for family gatherings and the holidays.” Intrigued, she offered her advice—and the client hired her to design the entire home.

THE PRIORITY

Speed was key for the client, who insisted that the project be ready for move-in within six months. For Dal Pra, now the founder and principal designer of her eponymous design firm, the aim was equally clear: “The client is stylish and chic, so the apartment needed to be sophisticated in order to blend with the client’s personality.”

THE CHALLENGE

In this age of delays and back orders, finishing the construction and custom designs within the client’s six-month ask proved to be Dal Pra’s

A black lacquer door, Phillip Jeffries Metallic Ombre wallpaper in Pewter on Shetland horsehair, and a Christian Astuguevieille black rope mirror add up to a seriously dramatic foyer. most significant hurdle. “Most of the custom design features were finished within six months, including the fireplace mantel and powder room vanity. However, not all the furnishings and the draperies were ready, but the client was able to be flexible for the special pieces that had longer lead times.”

THE DETAILS

For Dal Pra, one of the smallest spaces—the foyer—proved to be the most special. “With so much light in the living room and dining room areas with the floor-to-ceiling windows, I felt that the foyer needed to be dark to create an inviting, warm and intimate feeling when entering the apartment. We installed Phillip Jeffries horsehair and metallic leaf paper with a Christian Astuguevieille black rope mirror and black wool and silk custom rugs from The Rug Company. As the black lacquer door of the apartment opens, you become encompassed in this gorgeous, mysterious space.” The library is another highlight for the designer. “Everything about the library is so inviting that you want to collapse into the deep sofa upholstered in Métaphores chenille fabric with a fascinating novel or watch a great movie. The walls are covered in a Carlisle & Co. hand-embroidered fringe on natural sisal, which creates texture and dimension to complete the warm and inviting feel of the room.”

THE OUTCOME

In response to the finished product, the client was “overwhelmed with delight,” says Dal Pra. “I provided exactly what was expected of me—a beautiful, comfortable home that was chic and sophisticated. My goal for my client? When you walk into your home at the end of every day, you should love whichever room you decide you want to be in.” ■

THE CLIENT

Good things come to those who wait—at least in the case of this Gold Coast project by Soucie Horner Interiors. Referred by a friend who had previously worked with Holly Hunt, the design firm's principal and co-founder, Martin Horner, had a casual meeting with the client to discuss renovating his apartment. During the conversation, it became clear to Horner that in order to achieve his vision, the client should consider exploring other properties, since the current home wouldn't accommodate his ambitions. "Time passed," notes Horner, "and he eventually acquired an entire floor at No. 9 Walton, complete with a stunning terrace.” Though the client interviewed other top Chicago design firms, the client’s bond with Horner over their shared design principles and philosophies won out, and the project’s team was set.

THE PRIORITY

Explains Horner, “The client aspired to create a space where he could host gatherings and truly feel at ease in his new residence; he also expressed his desire for a modern apartment, despite his prior experience with more traditional, historical homes. He believed that a new high-rise should embody a sleek and minimalist aesthetic. Throughout our discussions about the interior design, we exchanged ideas and visual concepts, delving into how the apartment should evoke a particular ambiance. It became clear to him that we possessed the capacity to craft a design that aligned with his true desires, rather than what he initially thought he wanted.”

THE CHALLENGE

“We were in the midst of the design and construction process when the COVID-19 pandemic struck. At that point, everything began to decelerate, and we encountered disruptions in the supply chain. We became increasingly worried about the ability of businesses to maintain their production and sustainability during these challenging times.”

THE DETAILS

“This was truly a dream project,” says Horner. “Our connection with the client was truly exceptional, granting us the freedom to explore innovative design concepts. Among all the elements, my personal favorite has to be the kitchen. It was an opportunity to create a space that served as an artistic masterpiece that was not only visually striking but also exuded a sense of sexy, cool sophistication."

THE OUTCOME

Sums up Horner, "As we walked through the space together, a continuous smile adorned our client's face. He remarked that we truly understood what he desired, even though it diverged significantly from his initial vision. We were delighted to hear we delivered an intuitive understanding of our client's preferences, even hearing from him that we understood him 'better than he knew himself.'"

THE CLIENT

Some client relationships are transactional, while others evolve to become forever friends. That was the case with a stunning recent project by interior designer Brianne Bishop, who had grown close with the client over the course of two previous projects when the client approached her in 2022 for a third as she and her husband prepared to become empty nesters in Bishop's favorite building: new West Loop development The Hayden. "We were all elated," notes Bishop, the founder of Brianne Bishop Design, "and she emphasized she wanted it in 'true BBD style'—what an honor!"

THE PRIORITY

First and foremost, the client wanted exactly what she came to Brianne Bishop Design for: the firm's signature style of mixing various textures, contrast and scale. "She wanted the elevator vestibule to be a dramatic foreshadowing of what was to come," notes Bishop, "and of course [she also wanted] textural wallpaper in almost every room. Their beloved English cream dog was also a topic of conversation, and she set the palette for all upholstery in soft off-whites to mask any shedding." Perhaps most critically? "This kind-yet-powerful boss-babe of a client insisted on not only living there in less than six months, but comfortably—meaning very little work to follow. I have known her long enough to know when she makes a statement like this she means it."

In the living room, Benjamin Moore's Black Beauty sets a stylish scene with Arteriors Strata chairs, the artwork "Penumbra II" by Matera and shelves brimming with smartly curated accessories. Opposite page: A reupholstered sectional by Modern Love and Forsyth Art's sheepskin ottoman add luxurious texture to the room.

THE CHALLENGE

Admits Bishop, "We had just gone through an unfortunate time at BBD when all three team members moved away unexpectedly, and only one associate could stay on remote, so being short-staffed on such a short timeline was an unexpected challenge. We were already working through our existing projects with a small team, and with the addition of a dream project, we had to roll up our sleeves and get to work. Thankfully we were so inspired it was easy to log the extra hours, and with the client's trust and creative freedom, we were able to meet the deadline and execute her dream home." Another weighty obstacle presented itself with the task of moving the enormous custom quartzite dining table into the home, Bishop adds. "The first slab broke during the unloading process, so the fabricator was not taking any chances the second time around and craned it in through the expansive terrace doors. That was a nail-biting moment for many, but the result was worth it."

From top: The moody powder room seduces with Studio BK linen metallic gold wallcovering and Visual Comfort Avant linear sconces by Kelly Wearstler; a stunning RH Serenella chandelier stars in the dining room along with a custom-designed table by Brianne Bishop Design featuring top by Chicago Granite Guys and wood base from Hogan Millwork. Opposite page: CB2 Azalea counter stools in champagne pop in the kitchen.

THE DETAILS

“Providing this deserving client all of the drama, mood and wallpapers she has dreamt of since I’ve known her is a proud moment. We splurged where it mattered and saved when needed, and all of that balance left this home with texture, style and soul. Getting to curate every accessory and piece of art is such a treat for designers, but also somewhat rare; we know this client so well we nailed it right off the bat. We are also very proud to have been able to incorporate local artisans in this project that our client has admired for years, such as Cleveland Dean and Studio BK. To have their talents adorn the walls of someone who will love and appreciate it every day makes us as designers feel complete.”

THE OUTCOME

“They’re beyond thrilled with the outcome and love living in this space, as well as exploring their new neighborhood,” sums up Bishop. “They have loved everything from casual evenings in the oversize swivel chairs by Modern Love to entertaining friends on their terrace and hosting large dinner parties at their custom table. We were even able to squeeze in a wellness room in the primary bathroom by removing their large free-standing tub and filler and adding in an infrared sauna, a Peloton and a spot for their rebounder. This lovely client knew I was shopping for a tub and filler for my new home, and gave me these never-used beautiful fixtures—a true gift of love all around. I personally look forward to celebrating this client’s birthday, in this stunning home, at a disco-themed party around the corner.” ■

For iconic Aspen inn The Little Nell's 30th anniversary, famed photographer Gray Malin snapped a series of nostalgic images like this one, titled "Après Champagne, Aspen."

ASPEN

Why It's Hot: Rumor has it that a private jet lands at Aspen Airport every six minutes, so this is the spot if you like your après with a full flute of Champagne. With its stunning mountain views, world-class skiing and luxurious accommodations, it's no wonder that Aspen attracts elite travelers from around the globe. From the adrenaline-pumping slopes of Highland Bowl to the perfectly groomed runs of Buttermilk, there's a trail for every level of skier—and ample spots for those who prefer to just après all day.

Where to Stay: The St. Regis Aspen Resort (marriott.com), located at the heart of Aspen, is the largest luxury hotel in town. For the ultimate retreat, request the 1,900-square-foot presidential suite, complete with 24-hour butler service. Or opt for the historic Hotel Jerome (aubergeresorts.com/hoteljerome), which has served as the de facto town hall since its construction in 1889. Don't miss the newly refreshed Yarrow Spa at Hotel Jerome, offering a range of wellness treatments inspired by the natural elements of the Rocky Mountains. If you're looking for a buzzing après scene to mingle with the smart set, The Little Nell (thelittlenell.com)—Aspen's only ski-in, ski-out five-star, AAA Five Diamond property—is the place to be.

Insider Tip: Nothing hits the spot like some Parmesan truffle fries at The Little Nell's Ajax Tavern after tackling some monster moguls. Or, if you are lucky enough to hit a powder day, be sure to hike up Highland Bowl and enjoy pure bliss.

Whether it's for the blood-pumping thrill of carving down an untouched face or to sip après-ski cocktails by the fireplace, the world's best ski destinations are gearing up for the rush of powder hounds this season. From the legendary runs of the Alps to the epic vertical in the Rocky Mountains and beyond, scope out these 10 global hot spots to get your ski fix this winter.

BANFF, ALBERTA, CANADA

Why It's Hot: The charming, quintessential ski town has a European vibe, with a much shorter flight and a longer ski season that often stretches into May. The stunning, glacier-fed Lake Louise and nearby streams weaving through Banff National Park offer endless winter adventures ranging from miles of beautiful cross-country ski trails to ice climbing and skating.

Where to Stay: Fairmont Banff Springs (fairmont.com/banff-springs) offers a romantic castle and retreat for skiers to recharge with multiple restaurants, dining options, a sweeping spa—and indoor and outdoor hot pools to soak sore muscles post-ski.

Insider Tip: Channel your inner Elsa for a frozen fantasy with ice skating at Lake Louise, which boasts ice sculptures and even an ice bar—or opt for one of the nearby frozen waterfall hikes.

Great Room's massive handhewn timbers and stone fireplace.

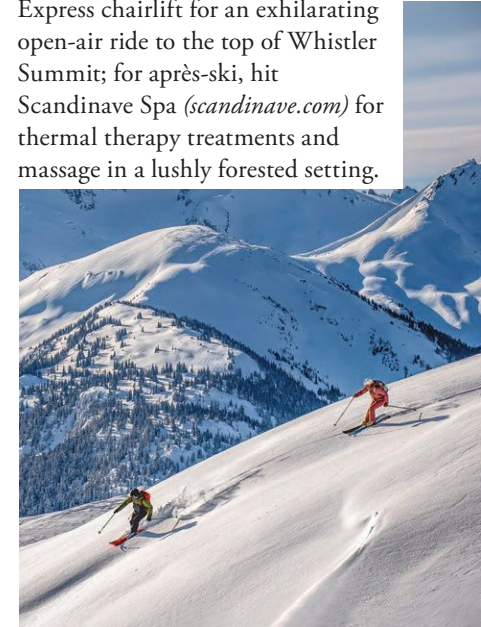

Insider Tip: Take a snowcat-drawn sleigh ride to one of the resort's iconic on-mountain cabins for an unforgettable dining experience. At Beano's Cabin, chef Mackenzie Nelson incorporates hyperlocal ingredients (like beets and rhubarb) into a five-course tasting menu. Our favorite: the rabbit confit with crispy leeks.

WHISTLER, BRITISH COLUMBIA, CANADA

Why It's Hot: Just two hours from Vancouver, this world-class destination boasts two massive interconnected peaks, an abundance of impeccably groomed trails, and an incomparable village setting that exudes character and charm. With soaring mountains, breathtaking vistas and unparalleled ski-in, ski-out access, it's no wonder Whistler has emerged as a supreme global ski destination.

Where to Stay: Set to open in November, the 12,000-square-foot Wedge Mountain Lodge & Spa (wedgesmountainlodge.com) will offer the ultimate in luxury for groups of up to 20, including a full-service spa, movie theater, game room and wine cellar.

Insider Tip: Hop on the Peak Express chairlift for an exhilarating open-air ride to the top of Whistler Summit; for après-ski, hit Scandinave Spa (scandinave.com) for thermal therapy treatments and massage in a lushly forested setting.

ZERMATT, SWITZERLAND

Why It's Hot: Breathtaking Alpine scenery and world-class ski slopes—all beneath the iconic Matterhorn Peak—make Zermatt a thrilling destination for both beginners and experts alike. A lively après-ski scene, charming village locale and luxurious accommodations add to the appeal.

Where to Stay: The newly renovated Hotel Schweizerhof Zermatt (schweizerhofzermatt.ch/en) offers a contemporary spin on Alpine style, with cozy accommodations, a premium spa and A-list dining destination The Schweizerhof Kitchen.

Insider Tip: Don't miss a ride on the just-debuted Matterhorn Alpine Crossing, a cable car ride that connects Zermatt and the Italian resort of Cervinia, with abundant jaw-dropping views.

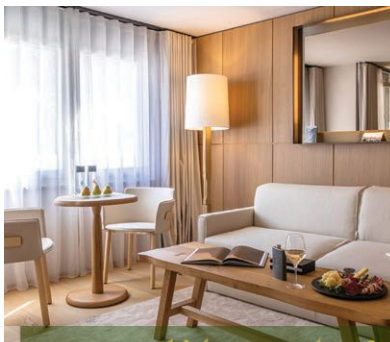

BEAVER CREEK, COLO.

Why It's Hot: With its signature chocolate chip cookies served on silver platters every afternoon at the base, Beaver Creek (beavercreek.com) is synonymous with white-glove service. The village is filled with twinkling lights and whimsical artwork; the trails are covered in impeccably groomed corduroy. And while the experience feels elevated from the moment you drive through the resort's imposing entry gates, the skiing can be fierce. Beaver Creek hosts the men's World Cup downhill on the bulletproof Birds of Prey racecourse, and Grouse Mountain is threaded with nonstop mogul

Where to Stay: The Ritz-Carlton, Bachelor Gulch (ritzcarlton.com) recently celebrated its 20th anniversary with a design refresh by Mexico City-based Simon Hamui Design Studio. TARENTEISE VALLEY, FRENCH ALPS

Why It's Hot: A dream destination for ski enthusiasts, this tucked-away region at the foot of the French Alps boasts access to seven top-notch ski resorts, including Tignes and Val d'Isère, plus three heli-ski bases and more.

Where to Stay: Chalet Pelerin and Chalet Hibou—both by adventure-centric outfit Eleven (elevenexperience.com)—offer rustic-chic surroundings and abundant piste and off-piste skiing, all in the picturesque mountain village of Le Miroir. Fun Fact: The area surged in popularity during the Winter Olympics in 1992, which Tarentaise Valley town Albertville hosted and which featured several local ski resorts.

TELLURIDE, COLO.

Why It's Hot: Postcard pretty, Telluride (telluride.com) is set against the dramatic backdrop of the San Juans. But there's also something about the erstwhile mining town being tucked in a box canyon that adds to its magic. Of course, skiers come for more than the panoramas. The resort (tellurideskiresort.com) offers steep hike-to chutes that drop off Gold Hill and Palmyra Peak. The new high-speed Plunge Lift (aka Lift 9) opened last winter, cutting the ride time in half so you can ski the infamous Plunge twice as many times. For guaranteed first tracks, try heli-skiing with Telluride Helitrax (helitrax.com).

Where to Stay: Perched in Telluride's Mountain Village, Madeline Hotel & Residences, Auberge Resorts Collection (aubergeresorts.com/madeline) recently notched its second five-star award from Forbes Travel Guide. A 2021 renovation tapped a palette of earthen hues and textures inspired by the San Juan landscape, creating an elegant and sophisticated base camp for adventure.

Insider Tip: Make a reservation at the omakase bar at sushi outpost Kazahana (kazahanatelluride.com), which launched in 2022. Chef Naoki Takahashi will personally guide you through a curated 15-course tasting menu.

BIG SKY, MONT.

Why It's Hot: With over 5,800 acres to explore, Big Sky is the largest ski area in the U.S., with the added bonus that it boasts exceptional snow conditions averaging 400 inches of annual snowfall. Adding to the excitement for the 2023-24 season is the all-new Lone Peak Tram featuring two Swiss-made, 75-person cabins and an all-glass viewing platform with panoramic views from the tram's top terminal.

Where to Stay: For the ultimate American Western luxury experience, settle in at the just-renovated historic B-K Cabin at Lone Mountain Ranch (lonemountainranch.com), which offers on-demand transport to and from Big Sky Resort, just 10 minutes away.

Fun Fact: Thanks to its 85 kilometers of well-groomed trails, Lone Mountain Ranch has been rated the No. 1 cross-country skiing destination in North America.

LECH ZÜRS AM ARLBERG, AUSTRIA

Why It's Hot: When it came to ski trips for the royal family, Princess Diana chose Lech (lechzuers.com), a charming Austrian ski village filled with five-star hotels, gourmet restaurants and high-end shops like Strolz (family run for decades), Sportalp Waldhart and Lenai & Linai. Lech and the nearby village of Zürs are located in the Arlberg, a vast interconnected region spanning more than 305 kilometers of trails and 87 lifts. Here, you can ski the Run of Fame, a 90-kilometer circuit that winds through eight villages, with Sedona is a magical place in its own right, but with the recent addition of Ambiente, a Landscape Hotel (ambientesedona.com), the Arizona destination has become even more extraordinary. Spiritual awakenings, wellness-minded journeys, and mind and body healing are nearly synonymous with Sedona, and as one of only 20 certified Dark Sky Communities in the world, the small town two hours north of Phoenix is a prime spot to stargaze and think big. Since its February 2023 debut, Ambiente Sedona, with its pristine views of the Coconino National Forest and red rock formations, is well positioned to inspire meditative moments of self-reflection and renewal.

On a recent visit to Ambiente, I discover the remarkable view is no coincidence. Jennifer May, co-owner of Two Sister Bosses—the Sedona company that owns, manages and developed the hotel—shares that after she helped build Mariposa, a Latin-inspired restaurant next door, the view was the main draw from the beginning. “The location for Ambiente was chosen because it provides guests with the same stunning views, but from the privacy of an intimate, 3-acre resort," she says. "The location also provides convenient access to all of Sedona's main attractions and allows guests to enjoy the night sky beaming with stars, followed by waking up to the panoramic vistas illuminated by the Sedona sunrise—a moment we know guests will cherish," she says, referring to the views from each of Ambiente's 40 guest atriums and their rooftop patios. Each cube-shaped, glass-encased atrium was intentionally placed and rotated at specific angles to blend in with and seemingly float above the existing landscape, trees and flora. While walking around the property, it feels as though each atrium has been there forever, tucked into this sanctuary surrounded by natural waterways and unbelievable beauty.

While the awe-inspiring for us because we are longtime Arizona natives ourselves and wanted to feature other talented local companies and brands throughout the property," May says. The atriums and common areas are decked out in wall art and sculptures from local Exposures International Gallery of Fine Art and Renee Taylor Gallery, and the Forty1 menu features a bounty of Bluebird Farms produce, Copper State Ranchers Reserve beef, Huss Brewing Co. and Smelter Town Brewery beers on tap, and more, making for both artful and flavorful ties to the Arizona community.

In lieu of an on-site fitness center, Ambiente encourages guests to take it outside and explore more than 200 miles of trails through mountain bike rentals and hiking tours, coordinated by its dedicated concierge team. The hotel also offers exclusive access to the Adobe Jack Trail system, where I had a surprise encounter with a pair of wild javelinas, pig-like animals native to the area, during an afternoon hike. For aspiring stargazers, Ambiente can coordinate a private experience with a professional astronomer who comes directly to the guest's atrium with powerful telescopes. For oenophiles, the hotel's partnership with local wine bar and tasting room The Art of Wine offers a sommelier-led wine tasting with local and global wines. For chill-seekers, Velvet Spa provides an in-depth menu of experiences, from intention-setting yogic transformations and healing sound journeys to meditation and an outdoor sauna. There's even one particularly indulgent option to experience a massage on your atrium's private rooftop under the stars. "We uniquely curated the cutting-edge wellness offerings at Velvet with my background of over 20 years of experience as a professional esthetician," May says. "The lavish treatments, along with the overarching composition of the spa, evoke a sense of grounding and reconnecting with the natural environment, bringing pristine tranquility to guests." As for me, a 90-minute ancient salt stone massage was a perfect and simply rejuvenating way to conclude my visit, and after an extended weekend at Ambiente, peaceful moments led to quiet introspection and a renewed sense of calm. ■ sights and sounds are the main attraction, the adults-only luxury property's amenities and activities are equally noteworthy. Ambiente boasts signature restaurant Forty1, a pond-shaped pool, and the intimate and luxurious Velvet Spa. One of my favorite aspects of the property is its close ties to local art galleries and food and beverage purveyors. "At the very beginning, sourcing and partnerships with other Arizona locals were of enormous importance

From top: The view is the main draw, but automatic blackout curtains in each atrium help maintain privacy; the centrally located Forty1 restaurant and beach-entry pool; Forty1 offers upscale breakfast, lunch, dinner and in-room dining.

GOING UP

Discover Norway's breathtaking mountains and coastal fjords by letting Oslo-based travel agency Up Norway curate the Scandinavian adventure of your dreams.

By Allison Mitchell

When I was first invited to Norway, I admit that I didn't know what to expect. My maternal grandmother's family immigrated to the United States from nearby Finland, but that was about the extent of my Scandinavian knowledge. After a week of traveling throughout the country with Up Norway (upnorway.com), though, I can confidently say that not only have I fallen in love with Norway and its Scandinavian culture, but I'm thrilled that you, too, can experience its magic like a local.

Founded in 2016 by native Norwegian Torunn Tronsvang, Up Norway has been touted by Travel + Leisure and Condé Nast Traveler for providing truly unique experiences to its guests, whether their goal is to immerse themselves in the urban excitement of Oslo or head off the beaten path to dog-sled with the natives. Up Norway—and Norway as a whole—is also deeply committed to sustainable travel, which has earned it the honor of being the only Norwegian travel company to be both Travelife and B Corp certified. So, let's begin our adventure, shall we?

GETTING THERE

Launched in spring 2021, Norse Atlantic Airways (flynorse.com) is the newest airline to offer direct flights from New York City, Fort Lauderdale and Los Angeles to Oslo. Opt for the airline's Plus class to enjoy spacious reclined seating, two in-flight meals, maximum baggage allowance, VIP check-in and increased ticket flexibility. Relax aboard Norse's fleet of Boeing 787 Dreamliners as you cruise for roughly seven hours from New York and 10 hours from Los Angeles. Once you land in Oslo, easily accessible trains can take you into the city or away from it, depending on your destination.

NATURAL WONDERS

Our journey with Up Norway begins in the idyllic village of Skåbu, Northern Europe's highest inhabited settlement, where roughly 600 Norwegians live year-round. Two of those residents are husband and wife Henrik and Jannicke, who opened Skåbu Fjellhotell (skabufjellhotell.no) in 2018. Warm and inviting, the 17-room lodge enchants with a crackling fireplace in the living room-style lobby and upscale dining at the on-site Restaurant Skadir. Led by chef Lukasz B. Socha, the concept is an adventure in gastronomy with menus that change daily and highlight the bounty of the nearby fishing lakes and land—think pork, sheep, moose and bison. With snow on the ground during our visit in late March, our days in Norway's oldest village are spent dog-sledding with locals from Skåbu Mountain Adventure, snowshoeing and eating moose burgers at Henrik and Jannicke's family farm.

After departing from Skåbu, we travel by train along the famous Rauma Railway—as seen in Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince—to reach our next stop: Storfjord Hotel (storfjordhotel.com). Nestled within the trees in Glomset, with views of the Storfjord and the Sunnmøre Alps as its backdrop, this quietly luxurious hotel features 30 rooms and suites outfitted with fireplaces, heated floors, rustic furnishings and sumptuous linens. Take a dip beneath the trees in the outdoor hot tub as you sip Storfjord Brygg, a Nordic beer brewed exclusively for the property. At dinner, head chef Ingeborg offers an ever-changing four-course menu in the on-site restaurant. As always, Up Norway adds a special touch to our stay by coordinating a fireside cocktail hour inside a yurt, a morning kayak adventure and an authentic Norwegian lunch with local Inger Anne Tolaas at her family's farm.

THE ROYAL TREATMENT

One of the country's most breathtaking sights lies between Norway's majestic mountains—fjords. These deep, narrow bodies of water reflect the snowcapped peaks above with a glasslike quality that inspires awe. To get to our next destination, we board a private boat, sip Champagne and stop by Christian Gaard Bygdetun (christian-gaard.no), a pub in Trandal accessible only by the fjords. From there, we head to the historic Hotel Union Øye (unionoye.no), a Relais & Châteaux property frequented by royals since its opening in 1891. Every room is named for a famous guest—think King Haakon VII and Queen Maud of Norway—and all modern technology has been omitted to transport guests back in time. Sip a cocktail in the Palm Room as you enjoy views of Mount Slogen before heading to dinner in the exquisite Conservatory. By night, stars glimmer through the glass ceiling and a four-course prix fixe menu is paired with premium varietals from the multiroom wine cellar.

ALL ABOUT OSLO

A car, boat and plane ride later—a one-hour flight via Widerøe airlines—and we're back in Oslo. We check in to Sommerro House (sommerrohouse.com), a five-star property that once housed Oslo's electric company. Opened in 2022, the GrecoDeco-designed hotel offers Oslo's only year-round rooftop pool and draws gourmants to its popular restaurant Ekspedisjonshallen with a wraparound bar and live music.

Once rested, our final two days are full of history—the Royal Palace, where Their Majesties King Harald and Queen Sonja live, is just up the street from Sommerro, and our walking tour takes us to Akershus Fortress, a medieval site where many dramatic acts of war took place. (Its castle is the inspiration for Anna and Elsa's home in Disney's Frozen.) Finally, we toast a vacation well spent over reindeer sausages and ciders, and celebrate like the locals by indulging in a sauna session at SALT Art & Music (salted.no), a practice akin to visiting a brewery in America. Like every moment we've spent in Norway, it's magical, unique and a memory to write home about. ■

TREASURE TROVE

Uncover one-of-a-kind creations by more than 25 Windy City makers at the Chicago Architecture Center's shoppable holiday pop-up gallery.

By Lauren Brocato

Holiday shopping is often a daunting endeavor, especially for those who already have it all. Luckily, the Chicago Architecture Center's shoppable holiday gallery, Archetypes: A Designed Object Pop-Up Shop, offers a plethora of one-of-a-kind gems that those on your list haven't seen before. "We are providing a completely unique browsing and shopping experience for our design-minded community," says Eve Fineman, director of exhibitions at the CAC. "The idea for Archetypes is to give visitors a glimpse into the design process by featuring unique prototypes and new concepts by a selected group of talented Chicago designers. None of the pieces we will be displaying are available for purchase anywhere else." More than 25 Windy City makers, including Refractory Studio's Angie West and Alberto Velez, and Lagomorph Design's

Seth Deysach have crafted original offerings ranging from glassware and furniture to art and ceramics. "[The pop-up] serves as an inspiring gathering space," Fineman adds. "It brings together both the CAC's visitors and the larger Chicago design community." Through Jan. 7, 111 E. Wacker Drive, architecture.org

From top: A pair of Lagomorph Design's Rokka rockers; Refractory's Promontory drink table is crafted with a cast bronze cuff and an inset cast glass top; ice-cast bronze by Steven Haulenbeek.
